

Christine Guyott

FCSI, RD

Principal

Christine has worked in the foodservice industry for over 30 years and has considerable experience developing functionally-oriented designs for numerous hospitals throughout the United States. Her collaborative, client-focused approach balances cost and space requirements along with the operator's vision to create successful new or renovated dining facilities. As a dietitian, her in-depth industry knowledge brings a level of understanding to each project that every client values.

Guyott's background in healthcare, ability to conceptualize and attention to detail provide designs that match each project's specific goals from academic medical centers to critical access hospitals. Prior to joining Rippe in 1995, Christine was a healthcare specialist, working primarily with hospitals and senior living.
