Terry has been planning foodservice facilities since 1985, and has considerable experience developing functionally-oriented operations for a wide range of clients in a variety of markets. She is excellent at working with client groups to help them plan well-organized work areas and selecting equipment that match their needs. She works closely with the foodservice management team to develop a sound design, efficient operational systems, and detailed work areas in line with their expectations.

Terry enjoys working closely with the entire project team to insure that the project is a success. Her intense customer-focused approach, coupled with hands-on experience, provides a particular seamlessness from start to finish.
